

West Midlands Anti Slavery Network

A network of agencies tackling modern slavery in the West Midlands and beyond

December 2017

Welcome to our final newsletter of 2017

This year has again seen us all achieve so much including the production of a Pan West Midlands Modern Slavery Policy and Procedure, a MS Table top Exercise and a MS Conference on Anti-Slavery Day. Moreover, all network members have consistently enhanced the response to the many aspects of modern slavery and we have ensured that the victim is put at the centre of all our work. The MS Policy and Procedure will be officially launched in January 2018 – details tbc. I wouldn't want to mistakenly leave any person or agency out by listing them, but we have all seen the dedication and passion by so many people over the past year, and that's from all three sectors, Public, Private and Third.

Thank you for continuing to support the West Midlands Anti Slavery Network by attending our meetings and/or all the work in between. We are extremely grateful for the help we have had by meeting venue providers in 2017 too.

The Table Top exercise in September was an excellent event and has highlighted some key areas in which we need to address, including identifying lead agencies at point of victim rescue and understanding the NRM process and victim care pathway. This is being worked on by a small task and finish group and we will keep you updated on progress. If you would like to join us please drop us a line with contact details. WMP have sent out a survey to enable us to understand all the many services provided by you all. If you have not yet completed the survey please take 10 minutes to do so – it will make a significant contribution in the future and will help identify gaps in provision.

The Anti-Slavery Day Conference was a very different event this year and the raffle and cake sale was an amazing idea by the planning team with all profits going to four local charities who provide services for victims of trafficking. We were extremely lucky again this year to attract such a high calibre of speakers, they were so informative and inspiring. Attendees were asked to make a pledge for their organisation for the forthcoming year – again it was inspiring to see the passion in making a difference.

The West Midlands Anti Slavery Network wishes you all a very happy new year, stay safe and see you all in 2018 (there is much still to do).

In September 2017 the Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner, Kevin Hyland, wrote to the Minister for Crime, Safeguarding and Vulnerability, Sarah Newton MP, regarding the UK's National Referral Mechanism (NRM).

Through a consultation with stakeholders the Commissioner found that the NRM does not achieve the objectives it initially set out to and therefore requires urgent reform. The Commissioner has called for reform based on recommendations detailed in his previous letter to the Minister, sent in January 2017.

Based on the Commissioner's recommendations, the UK Government recently announced changes to the NRM including longer periods of support (for full details please click here).

The Commissioner's letter includes details of pre-NRM support, improved decision making, long-term care and greater data collection. You can read the full letter here.

Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner, Kevin Hyland OBE, commissioned the University of Nottingham to undertake a piece of research mapping Anti-Slavery partnerships across the UK.

As a result of this research a report has been published and Nottingham University is hosting a website containing contact details of partnerships country wide. WMASN was asked to speak at the 'Collaborating for freedom: Strengthening Anti-Slavery Partnerships' conference held early in November which highlighted this research.

National Human Trafficking Awareness Day – January 11th 2018 How well do we know our communities?

This event is being run by Sandwell Council to raise awareness of Modern Slavery / Human Trafficking and how we can tackle it. There will be information about the NRM and the victim care pathway as well as helping delegates to gain a greater understanding of a victim's journey. Attendees will be required to actively contribute towards the workshop sessions and will meet a cross-representation of agencies and practitioners. Please contact Diane Wright for further info at: diane_wright@sandwell.gov.uk

Registration can be made via the Eventbrite link below – registration needs to be completed by Friday 5th January 2018. Please book your free place at:

Barnardo's West Midlands Panel for Protection of Trafficked Children (PPTC) project workers have had a really busy few months!

In September, as part of national Police activity around Child Trafficking, we worked in partnership with West Midlands Police and National Crime Agency (NCA) to undertake information sharing visits between young people and Police.

Over 2 sessions, our project workers took 5 young people to visit Police Officers, have a tour of the Police Station and learn more about law enforcement in UK. The young people asked many questions, and really enjoyed the experience with lots learned by all involved. This was supported by Sgt Khizra Dhindsa and Supt Richard North from West Midlands Police.

In October, 6 young people were supported by our project workers to attend The Donkey Sanctuary in Sutton Coldfield, to experience Donkey Assisted Therapy as part of the PPTC direct work offer.

With the help of Donkey Assisted Therapy Volunteers, the young people responded so fast, from being afraid of donkeys to learning how to be gentle and stroke them, hugging and feeding them by hand. There were special moments young people shared with the donkeys – like leaning forward to feel the donkey's mane and touching the donkey's face. It was an opportunity for a connection between donkey and each young person on an emotional as well as a physical level. The feedback from the young people was incredible, in terms of how much they felt they had benefitted from this experience.

In November, our project workers took 7 young people to the World Skills Fair at the Birmingham NEC. This was an opportunity for young people to be inspired to explore careers and motivate them to find out more about the world of work, and they really were inspired!

One young person told a project worker:

“This has opened a new world for me, I really appreciate the support I am receiving from all the professionals working with me and especially Barnardo's PPTC for inviting me to attend this fair. It means a lot to me to be in a culture in which a child can be respected and valued as a human being....I have been told a number of times by bad people who exploited me that I am unworthy because I was abandoned by my family but I want to prove that I am good enough. I can only do that through utilising the opportunities in front of me”.

We have many more activities planned, including more partnership visits with West Midlands Police, and a Christmas party. We look forward to updating you about more of our work in the next newsletter.

As well as the direct work, we continue to chair the multi-agency Operational PPTC which is making significant progress in identifying themes and trends regarding child trafficking in our area, and in working together to provide the best care and support possible for trafficked children.

Our 24hour support line is available for any professional in West Midlands who would like advice or support on responding to, or working with a child suspected to have been trafficked. Our project workers can even support you with completing the NRM, and devising safety plans. 24/7 Support Line -0800 043 4303.

Black Country Women's Aid, in partnership with The Salvation Army has commissioned a piece of research to examine the growing issue of drugs and alcohol in relation to Modern Day Slavery (MDS). The research will explore the particular issues victims of MDS face in relation to drugs and alcohol, how these add to the complexity of need and how they are understood by commissioners and providers. It will also examine the level and ease of access to treatment, gaps in service provision and the impact of MDS on services.

The research report will have a wide application at operational and strategic levels. Key objectives include:

- Provide a tool for services supporting victims of MDS to identify pathways and access to services
- Identify specific needs and differences between those victims of MDS who are based in accommodation and those who receive outreach services
- Identify the range of substances involved and mode of use (pre-existing dependence/use, coercive control, self- medicating post- traumatic usage)
- Identify religious and socio-cultural modifiers of behaviour
- Identify pathways for the ongoing support of victims of MDS once they leave the NRM
- Allow drug and alcohol providers to understand the issue of MDS and improve access and support
- Identify potential models of service and who will be involved in multi- agency partnerships
- Allow commissioners to gain an overview of impact, needs and gaps to influence service development

We hope the report will contribute to the national knowledge base on MDS with its exploration of the growing issue of substance misuse and the serious challenges this present for support providers within the NRM; highlighting areas of best-practice and collaboration between providers and commissioned services, and analysis of gaps in service with suggestions on how identified needs can be met.
